

Lachapelle Auzac, 15 April 2010

- CityJet is first to offer direct flights from UK, from only £59 including taxes -

CityJet, the airline that flies from the heart of London, announced the launch of a new summer route to Brive – the gateways to the Dordogne, one of the UK's best-loved French holiday destinations. Starting in June, CityJet will offer flights to Brive from its hub at London City Airport becoming the first airline to offer direct flights from the UK to this popular destination

Services will operate to Brive Dordogne Valley from 25 June 2010 until 12 September 2010.

Prices start from £59 one way, including all taxes.

The brand new Brive Dordogne Valley Airport, opening in June 2010, will be the best situated airport for UK visitors to the Dordogne, Lot and Correze departments. The area offers beautiful scenery, cycling, fishing and canoeing as well as access to the stunning medieval towns of Rocamadour, Sarlat and Turenne. Brive is also home to a highly regarded rugby team.

London City – Brive Dordogne

Friday AF5261 14.35-17.10

Saturday AF5263 08.15-10.50

Sunday AF5265 16.20-18.55

Brive Dordogne – London City

Friday AF5260 17.40-18.15

Saturday AF5262 11.20-11.55

Sunday AF5264 19.25-20.00

Flights can be booked online at www.Cityjet.com from Thursday 15th April 2010.

-

About CityJet

CityJet is the largest carrier operating at London City Airport. It currently offers a choice of nearly 600 flights a week from this conveniently-located airport to 14 destinations in the UK, Ireland and mainland Europe.

The airline operates non-stop services from London City to Amsterdam, Antwerp, Dublin, Dundee, Edinburgh, Eindhoven, Geneva, Jersey, Luxembourg, Milan, Nantes, Paris Orly, Rotterdam and Venice. It also flies non-stop from Manchester to Antwerp and from Rotterdam to Hamburg.

CityJet is renowned for providing convenient, hassle-free travel, combined with award-winning service, on high-frequency routes in the UK and Europe. Its extensive network offers a multitude of choice for business and leisure travellers, with a host of convenient timings.

At London City, the closest airport to Central London, passengers can check in just 15 minutes prior to departure (20 minutes with hold baggage).

CityJet fares include taxes and charges, and all our customers enjoy a choice of online or airport check-in, advance seat assignment, checked baggage, and complimentary beverages and light meals on board.

For more information, reservations and to check in online, visit www.cityjet.com.

CityJet is a 100% subsidiary of the AIR FRANCE KLM Group.